SERAX

CURVE is a complementary seating collection. A perfect addition to the more saggy TV sofa and living room. Just right for a relaxed conversation, or to open the laptop, or read a book. "I am particularly fond of the contrast between angular and round, between hard and soft," says Willenz. "The steel frame of the CURVE sofa is very simple, and quite square too. That is in stark contrast to the thick and bendy cushion that covers it."

This typology and design makes it easy for CURVE to adapt to its surroundings. "I can see the sofa in both a very playful environment, at home, in the living room, in a bedroom, home-office, or even in the more contract office situations." The CURVE 1-seater is available with and without armrests. The sofas are accompanied by a side table with a marble or steel table top and an ottoman to

SYLVAIN WILLENZ

After Sylvain Willenz graduated from the Royal College of Art in London in 2003, he started his own design studio in Brussels. Since then he has designed mainly furniture, lighting, and objects for international labels such as Hem, Durler, and Established & Sons. In 2009, Willenz was named Designer of the Year by Stichting Interieur and Weekend Knack. At some point in his life, Willenz wanted to become a cartoonist. This predilection for graphics can still be found in his designs today, in combination with a detailed search for simplicity and elegance.
